				27	Mettarë/ Penninor	Last Day

Generally speaking, this is the most accurate representation of the Elven Calendar for our modern times; designed to enable the most consistent experience of Elven spiritual practice for persons who walk the Elven spiritual path. (There is a 3-day variance between it and the most widely used online Elven Calendar (presented by the Encyclopedia of Arda), due to the latter's placement of Yestarë in the month of December instead of in March, as well as with the [older] New Reckoning's placement of Yestarë on March 25th.) The New Reckoning does align with the Encyclopedia of Arda's count, however, (consequent to the expert, critical analysis of Elven spiritualist, Dave Woosely, and others), the modern observance of Yestarë is on March 28th; hence, this presentation of it, using the Modern New Reckoning, resolving the discrepancies between all prior thereof representations, and respecting the balancing of the Gregorian Leap Year's addition of February 29th by the herein addition of an extra day during Enderi, is the most accurate Elven Calendar for contemporary uses.
